Why you should attend: Title VI, U.S.C. § 2000d of the 1964 Civil Rights Act prohibits discrimination based on national origin by any public entity, including states, that receives federal funding or assistance. Title VI requires entities receiving federal assistance to provide non-English-language assistance to limited English proficient people. Knowledge of the scope and requirements of Title VI is especially important to the Arizona public lawyer with the passage of Proposition 103, English as the official language. Arizona Constitution, Article XXVIII.

$5 (per session) State Government Employees (to cover the cost of materials).
